Calls Off Capital Appointment To See Army Officials on $3.000,000 Project.

City's Own Survey To Report Adequate Water Supply, 'Ideal' Sanitation.

Shelby industrial leaders opposing construction of an army air force supply depot near there today called off their proposed trip to Washington and cancelled a Wednesday appointment with war department officials, The News-Journal learned from Washington sources.

Those opposing the depot project last Friday requested Congressman J. Harry McGregor to arrange the conference at which the Shelby delegation would present evidence tending to show that the presence of the depot would imperil the towns water supply.

W. C. Connelly president of the Ohio Seamless Tube company one of Shelby's major industries could not be reached at the plant today although employes at his Cleveland offices said he had left this morning for Shelby. Connelly had been identified as the leader of the protest movement.

In flat contradiction to any argument that construction of the depot would jeopardize the industrial water situation in Shelby was the report of the engineering firm of H. D Jones and company Toledo, which will be dispatched to Shelby council today.

T. D. Henry engineer for the firm, which made a sanitary survey at the request of council, before the city starts construction work on a dam which will impound an estimated 1 800,000 gallons of water to assure an adequate supply, told The News-Journal today:

"They can get plenty of water for all purposes. Our survey shows an ample supply of water to supply present and proposed needs and sanitary needs of the depot can be ideally linked with the Shelby sewerage system."

Meanwhile, more than 50 men started work today on the drainage project at the site of the Air Force Supply depot, Capt. Glen E. Shaw of the Army Engineer corps said at Shelby. The number of workers will gradually increase as work progresses, he said.

Preliminary work is in charge of J F. O'Connor, Ft Wayne, Ind., contractor, who moved to the Shelby project from Crestline

U. S. War Correspondent Rides With RAF, Describes Huge Fires Set In Nazi Capital by British Bombers

(Months of effort by American, British, and Dominions newspapermen to accompany Royal Air bombers on their raids on Germany, culminated Saturday night when six reporters rode over Berlin. Chosen by lot, the New York Times' correspondent, James MacDonald, represented the American Press, and his description of the raid follows.)

By JAMES MACDONALD
(New York Times Correspondent)

AN RAF BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND- I heard the impersonal voice of Canadian Warrant Officer (navigator) Clayton Thompson saying: "You're now 90 miles from the target"

Hardly were the words out of his mouth than the ground gunners began sending shells up at us, splitting the sky with jagged flashes of light as they exploded. Either their aim was poor or "Skipper's" (the RAF sergeant pilot anonymous because of RAF regulations), piloting was excellent. They did not come near enough for us to hear the explosions above the noise of our motors.

"You're now nearing the target," said Clayton, as if he were reading some newspaper item he considered of general interest

Then I saw the sight I had heard about from many of my RAF friends: Dummy fires lit by the Germans on bogus landing fields the imitation of freight yards, flimsy structures disguised as important buildings. These fires on the outskirts of Berlin were intended of course, to make raiding airmen think they were over the city and drop bombs on them. We ignored them

A moment or two later I saw the real thing. Waves of raiders that had taken off before us back in Britain had found the target, dropped their loads and made way for us new arrivals.

Below and slightly to the right, were several straight strings of lights, glowing like street lamps, which seemed to criss-cross each other at right angles. They were caused by incendiaries that had just burst.

SCORES INJURED IN TUMBLES AS ICE GRIPS CITY

6 Rural Consolidated Schools Closed as Buses Fail To Make Trips.

Falls and automobile accidents on ice coated highways of the Mansfield area yesterday and today caused injuries requiring hospital treatment to six persons with scores of other minor mishaps reported Six of the county's nine consolidated schools were closed today as state, county and city officials worked feverishly to remedy hazardous road conditions.

Today's weather forecast was for more freezing rains and continued cold. Colder weather was predicted for tonight

Five were admitted to General hospital yesterday as the result of falls, while R. L. Williams, of Tryon, Ga., injured in an army truck wrecker collision near Ashland, was the only person reported injured in more than a score of motor accidents on the ice. Williams was not seriously hurt, and the vehicles involved were not badly damaged.

Schools at Madison, Plymouth and Shiloh were the only ones in the county not ordered closed. Although no accidents were reported, school buses in these districts were known to have experienced great difficulty on their routes with at least one late because of being forced off the road by another car out of control. Schools closed included: Lucas, Butler, Bellville, Lexington, Springfield and Union. Many absences were reported in the Mansfield schools.

All available cinder and salt brigades were mustered for road and street service today. The county highway's pay period, which closed Saturday, was more than a $100 higher than for any similar period in more than 10 years because of the great amount of snow and ice, with expenses for the current storm not included

Gather in Chicago to Elect Walker Party Chairman.

CHICAGO — (UP) — The Democratic national committee met today to elect Postmaster General Frank C. Walker as its wartime chairman until the opening of the 1914 campaign

Chairman Edward J. Flynn called the meeting—the first at which he has presided since he became head of the committee in August, 1940—to submit his resignation so he will be free to accept an apopintment as minister to Australia if his nomination is confirmed by the senate.

Committeemen gathering before the meeting indicated that no controversial issues would be raised and that there was no disagreement over electing Walker to head the committee. They doubted that any other candidates would be nominated.

Police Chief's Application For New Leave To Get Quick Action, Member Says.

Application for a second leave-of-absence for Police Chief Meade K. Bates, effective tomorrow, was submitted to the Mansfield Civil Service commission at noon today

Bates, who returned to his post here last Monday, wants to go back with the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a special agent, he told the commission in his application. He requested a year's leave this time.

Tom Woodard, secretary of the commission, said the application would receive prompt action, but neither he nor Atty. George W. Biddle, chairman of the commission, would comment on the probable action of the commission on the request for another leave.

It is understood the commission agreed to grant Bates a second leave if he returned as chief before his first leave expired last

HIT BY FIRE

Damaged Motor at Empire Curbs Operations.

A midnight fire which put a 1750-horsepower electric motor out of commission resulted in a curtailment of production in the sheet steel division of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company today.

The open hearth and bar mill divisions, centers of the bulk of the company's production of steel for war industry, were not affected, Oliver C. Henkel, treasurer of the company said.

A short circuit in the motor caused the blaze and most damage was to electrical wiring. Henkel predicted that the motor will be in operation again in a week. Firemen from central station put out the fire.

Sales Tax Shows County Lost $5,610,000 In Business In '42

Evidence of how badly Mansfield and Richland county need more war industries was revealed today in the state sales tax report for 1942 which showed the county's receipts down 23.2 per cent last year. Only eight of the 88 counties in Ohio had greater decreases.

Richland county sales tax receipts, reliable measuring stick of retail sales volume, were down $170,454 for the year. That was the greatest actual money decrease in the state outside the five most populous counties.

The $170,451 drop in tax receipts reflects a potential business loss of in excess of $5,610,000 in retail sales.

BOARD ACTS AS MINERS REFUSE TO HEED ORDER

President Can Make Own Demand on Men, Send Troops To Reopen Coal Pits.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON The war labor board today voted unanimously to turn over to President Roosevelt the 20-day-old strike of the Pennsylvania anthracite mine workers

A committee of six WLB members will confer with White House representatives this afternoon and recommend that President Roosevelt make a stern public demand, backed by all his wartime powers, that the strikers return to the pits.

However, it was pointed out that the president might still choose to send troops into the strike crippled area.

Following official notification that approximately 13 500 miners had voted to continue their defiance of the orders of the war labor board and their leader, John L. Lewis, the board met in emergency executive session early this morning and voted its action after approximately five minutes of discussion.

Meanwhile Lewis president of the United Mine Workers union, who also was being defied by the recalcitrant strikers stood ready to banish the leaders of the walkout from the union. Lewis already has branded the strike as illegal and warned the miners to "cut out the foolishness"

Lewis, at latest reports, was undecided whether he personally would go to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the strike center. At the hearing Friday when the WLB ordered the miners to go back to work, one strike leader told Lewis that he could end the walkout by going into the strike area and making just one speech. Lewis had explained that he had not gone into the hard coal fields earlier for

ALL WORKERS BACK ON JOB

Hartman Electric Employes Pitch in on Salvage Work After $75,000 Fire.

Employes of the Hartman Electric company, loyal to the firm which suffered a $75,000 fire loss when flames swept their war plant at Fifth and Diamond streets last Tuesday night, were back on their jobs today.

Although assigned to salvage work and the moving of repairable machinery from the stricken plant virtually every one of the 105 machine operators and other workers reported this morning at temporary quarters in the Ohio Textile Products company plant, 147 North Diamond street. Electricians have worked around-the-clock hours to re-establish machine operations.

"For their loyalty we pledge to install them, as soon as possible, in a new and ultra-modern factory building," Lewis F. Hartman, vice president-secretary of the firm declared today.

Reports from the U. S. Employment office a few days ago indicated that when Hartman employes, applying for new work, learned they would have to obtain releases from the fire-struck firm, refused to do so, preferring to wait to re-employment with the electrical firm. "The Hartmans have been too good to us" was the tone of the workers' chorus.

Brown's appointment was approved after Minority Leader McNary of Oregon waived the rule which would have required the nomination to lie over one day following its report by the senate banking committee.

Nazis Counter With Two Puny Attacks On Britain; Russians Imperil Kharkov, Eighth Army Nears Tripoli In Renewed Attack.

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(UP)—Heavy bombers of the United States army air force attacked the harbor at Tripoli by daylight yesterday and scored hits on the mole, and other targets, it was learned today.

(By Associated Press)

Big British bombers rained destruction upon Berlin last night for the second time in a row in raids which gave the Nazi capital its worst week-end of the war and made two German aerial counter-thrusts at London seem puny by comparison.

And as the Germans counted their dead and viewed their ruins, the Allies pounded grimly on with land offensives which shook the Axis positions in North Africa and Southern Russia.

Hard on the heels of retreating Axis forces in Africa, the British Eighth army was reported within 100 miles of Tripoli in a new drive which cracked Marshal Rommel's defenses again and threatened to by-pass his next coastal strongpoints.

The Red army closed in on Rostov from three sides and stabbed to 118 miles of Kharkov, the all-important Donets valley base in the Ukraine from which the Germans launched their whole 1942 summer and fall drive into the Don bend and the Caucasus

The British regarded the bombing exchange as the first round of a renewed "battle of the capitals." And they declared triumphantly that it was their round—won with harder blows and a more effective defense.

While the RAF lost 22 heavy bombers in rekindling last night the fires it had set the night before with its ruinous four-ton "block-busters" and tens of thousands of incendiaries, relatively few German airmen succeeded in penetrating the terrific anti-aircraft which guarded London along with secret new defenses

The British reported that only one bomber out of a striking force of perhaps 300 was lost in the Saturday night raid on Berlin, the heaviest the German capital had experienced and its first in more than a year

Returning pilots said large areas of the city must have been laid waste by great fires visible for 100 miles. Fliers who had been over Berlin before, and knew it as "the hottest spot in Germany," said the anti-aircraft fire was the weakest they had ever encountered over the capital.

It was suggested that the Germans must have moved much of their anti-aircraft defenses to the west in an attempt to guard the badly battered industrial centers of the Rhine and Ruhr.

American press and radio correspondents accompanied the raiders for the first time over the heart of the reich. James McDon-

POUNDING: Allies Keep Up Widespread Attack On Japs

(By Associated Press)

Allied air forces kept up their two-day battering of the Japanese in Burma and their steady pounding of the invaders' shipping and air bases in the Solomons-New Guinea area over the week-end while the Americans on Guadalcanal braced for an expected new onslaught against their improved positions.

Three air attacks against the Americans on Guadalcanal, announced over the week-end by the navy, indicated that the Japanese were preparing for another determined attempt, however costly, to regain their former positions on Guadalcanal.

The raids the first multi-plane attack on Guadalcanal since last November, followed repeated attempts by the Japanese to get new troops and supplies ashore. The navy reported two days ago that United States planes attacked one group of five destroyers and another of nine. Both groups were damaged, but it was not disclosed whether they accomplished any landings

Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon commander of the army air and ground forces in the south Pacific, declared the scope of Allied offensive plans extended far beyond Guadalcanal

He said it was the aim of the Allies to "unhinge the Japanese from New Guinea, the Bismarck Archipelago and the Solomon islands."

United States bombers again pounded Japanese shipping, ports and air bases in the New Guinea area. Five Japanese merchant ships were sunk or damaged in a three-hour raid by Flying Fortresses on the habor of Rabaul, New Britain Saturday night.

PROFIT: Reds Drive Ahead On Lessons Learned From Nazis

By EDDIE GILMORE

WITH THE RED ARMY SOUTHEAST OF ROSTOV (via Moscow)—(AP)—The young but strong Russian army fighting back so fiercely and confidently, driving the best of the German troops before it, is an army that has learned much and oddly learned a lot from its enemy

At the moment all along this front the operation is one of beautifully-timed encirclements

There is no secret about the Red army tactics which have put the Germans on the run

The Russians scout and then begin their encirclements with fast-moving units which include airplanes, air sledges which can go better than 100 miles an hour, cavalry and motorized infantry when artillery is needed to blast the Germans from their positions. They have plenty of it- and it is plenty big. Throughout the whole drive here the artillery has been the real backbone.

Soviet mobile units have achieved great skill in cutting up the enemy front. Their tanks, on which tommy-gunners ride, strike with great effect.

The Russians assert that their

Lawrence W Houser, of Newport, Tenn who had been injured in another fall two weeks ago was hurt more seriously yesterday when he fell in front of his rooming house in the 200 block on Lexington avenue. Houser, who has been employed in a defense plant in the area, was taken to the hospital by Patrolmen William Taylor and Robert Robnolte.

Slipping as he walked on North Main street early Sunday morning, Joe Zaros, 549 North Mulberry street, was treated for a fractured collar bone. Mrs. Herbert Hamilton, 234 West Third street, suffered a fractured elbow and Mrs. Anna M. Mohler, of Nashville, O., received a fractured wrist when she fell Sunday night.

In one of a dozen accidents reported to city police Alex Adelman, 260 Harker street, a truck driver, said his vehicle was damaged when it struck an improperly lighted excavation of the waterworks department at Orange and Newman streets. Patrolmen Earl Korn and Carl Beard reported that all warning lights were properly displayed when they visited the scene.

Other reports recited collisions of cars driven by Harvey Imhoff, 454 Marion avenue, and Lawrence Siwek, 20 Jefferson street, on North Diamond street; Robert Dirlam, 130 Sherman avenue, and a police cruiser driven by Lieut Bruce Friday, on Benton street, when Dirlam skidded through a stop sign; Willis B. Paul Koozer, Mansfield R. D. 5, reported he hit a parked truck of Raitch and Sons, Lexington, on Elm street.

Two minor collisions, both involving state highway cinder trucks, were reported early Sunday morning on State Route 13 state highway patrolmen said Rodney Claire Lewis, Shelby, rammed into a highway truck driven by Darrel W. Lape, 129½ East Fourth street, three miles north of Mansfield at the intersection with the state route. Lewis, driving on a county road told patrolmen that due to ice and fog on his windshield he didn't realize his nearness to the intersection and skidded when he applied his brakes. Considerable damage was done to his car.

Percy M Crunkelton, jr., of Butler, collided with a cinder truck operated by Wilbur R. Bowers, Bellville, as the latter had stopped to make repairs just south of Mansfield. Neither driver was injured.

retention of the Mansfield Air Depot in Richland county came from almost every quarter in Mansfield and in Shelby, support seemed to be growing in sections outside of the industrial quarter.

The Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and Mansfield Manufacturers club led a telegram shower to Congressman J Harry McGregor in Washington, urging the congressman to oppose any move that would take the air depot from Richland county.

Mansfield's Chamber of Commerce unanimously urges retention of the depot in Richland county, John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, said today, explaining that a telegram has been sent Congressman McGregor asking up-to-the-minute reports on opposition movements. The text of the message follows

"The Mansfield Chamber of Commerce wants to do everything possible to keep the Air Force Supply depot in Richland county. Please keep us informed regarding any progress being made by the opposition"

Routzon said that at a luncheon conference Friday of the Mansfield Manufacturers club he explained in detail facts surrounding the location of the plant north of Shelby and its eventual operation Members were unanimous in expressions favoring the depot, Routzon said.

The Retail Merchants association, labor unions and individuals have already dispatched or plan to dispatch telegrams supporting the depot

The telegrams were continuing today and it was urged that messages of sentiment toward the depot be continued despite the fact that the Shelby interests had called off their appointment.

A front page editorial urging telegrams to Congressman McGregor was carried in yesterday's News-Journal

Announcement that a Shelby site had been chosen for the $3-000 000 project specified that 60 to 70 per cent of the labor would be drawn from Mansfield Military secrecy prevents publicizing the number of men who would be employed. It was known, however, that construction work will require thousands of workers.

The protest on the part of Shelby industrialists came to light Friday afternoon a short time after it became known that Shelby manufacturing officials had held a meeting

Later it was revealed that they had sought an appointment with Washington officials to claim that the water used by the air depot would jeopardize the supply to Shelby industries.

This was confirmed Saturday by Congressman McGregor when he was contacted by the News-Journal by telephone. McGregor said as their representative in congress he arranged the appointment for Wednesday with an unnamed army general.

The protest move was revealed by the News-Journal Saturday along with the information that the Shelby site was the only one of three in Richland county suitable for the depot Rejection of the Shelby site would mean the transfer of the project to some other county

Soldiers generally wear the famous Russian valinki—a felt boot that comes to the knee, or above, if wanted Their uniforms are thick and so is their underwear.

Most of them prefer a fur-lined hat to a steel helmet in winter weather

Their gloves are deep fur-lined and equipped with trigger fingers

Their tommy-gun is a neat, easily handled light little weapon They also carry a very ugly-looking knife

The Red army front-line fighter gets 100 grams (three and one-half ounces) of vodka daily which, if you downed it all at once, wouldn't give you a "belt"

I have never yet seen a bottle on a Russian soldier or any soldier drinking.

Up here at the front we have been eating well—far better than we eat in Moscow

It also gives an American a thrill up here to know that most of the food for the Red army is hauled up over great distances by United States made trucks Russians say that the American trucks are good and strong but they are in great need of spare parts.

The Japanese sent 24 medium bombers and 20 fighters against the Allied base at Milne bay in New Guinea, but a communique from Allied headquarters said damage was unimportant and there were no casualties

On the New Guinea land front, Allied forces cut the main road in the rear of Japanese forces at Sananada and killed 120 Japanese

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commander of Allied ground troops under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said in a broadcast last night that Japan's forces in the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea had been "practically eliminated," as well as defeated.

United States and British flyers scored anew in their blows from the east and west against the Japanese in Burma

Lieut Gen Joseph W Stilwell's headquarters in Chungking said Bhamo, an advanced Japanese base in Burma had been practically ruined by heavy bombing and strafing

American medium bombers also battered the Japanese air base at Lashio with tons of explosives

P-40 Warhawks outnumbered three to one, were said to have beaten off a large force of Japanese planes which attacked an American air base in western China Four Zeros were listed as shot down, four others probably shot down, and a Japanese bomber was believed destroyed Only one of the P-40s was lost

From India the RAF made three attacks on Japanese positions near Rathedaung, in the area where British forces have pushed to about 25 miles from the port of Akyab on the west coast of Burma Two river steamers also were damaged.

United States heavy bombers almost certainly destroyed two Japanese transports totaling 12-000 tons far south of Rangoon yesterday the pilots reported

Rout Japs In Air Fight Without Bullets

GUADALCANAL, Jan. 5—(Delayed) —(AP)— Their ammunition gone after shooting down four Japanese dive bombers and leaving three others smoking, four U. S. marine fighter pilots were attacked today by a large formation of Zeros—and how they bluffed their way out of this hot spot is an epochal story of the new year from Guadalcanal's Henderson field.

The four young fliers—outnumbered three to one—outsmarted the Japanese by turning their planes directly into the Zeros, pretending thus to be delivering an attack through their guns were without a sting. They got away uninjured but their planes were full of holes.

The pilots are Captain Gregg Loesch, 23, of Montrose, Colo., Lieut. William P. Marontate, 23, of Seattle, Wash; Lieut. Frank H. (Skeezix) Presley, 22, of Encinitas, Calif and Lieut. Jack B. Gifford, 23, of Cleveland

Fly Supplies In To U. S. Advance Patrol

GUADALCANAL, Jan 12—(Delayed) —(AP)— A Flying Fortress crew today braved heavy Japanese fire to take food, water and ammunition to 200 American infantrymen who captured an important hill on Guadalcanal so far ahead of schedule they had outdistanced their supplies

The men had been without food and water for two days. They were surrounded by Japs

The only way supplies could be sent to the Americans by land was by an uncertain two-day trip through the jungle.

Sales Tax Shows County Lost $5,610,000 In Business In '42

for 1942 amounted to $565,102, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported Receipts in 1941 totaled $735 556.

About the only bright spot in the county's sales picture developed in the final week of 1942 when tax receipts showed a $169 increase over the corresponding week of 1941.

Of the eight counties in the state with a greater drop in sales tax collections last year, only one, Muskingum county, is in Richland county's population class All the others are considerably smaller and most of them are classed as agricultural counties.

Muskingum county, with Zanesville as the county seat, had a decrease of 24.2 per cent last year. Others with greater decreases were Morrow county, 27.1 per cent, Ashland, 25.7 per cent; Clermont, 33.2 per cent; Geauga, 28.8 per cent; Harrison, 26.7 per cent; Jackson, 24.6 per cent, and Pike, 23.5 per cent

Five counties, at least three of them centers of war activity, reported increases in sales tax collections in 1942 over 1941. They were Allen (Lima) with 4.1 per cent gain; Marion, 2.4 per cent increase; Gallia, up 11.8 per cent; Montgomery (Dayton) .9 per cent, and Meigs, up 4.1 per cent.

Lima, Dayton, and Marion are among the busiest cities in the country, all working on huge war orders, while Marion business has been boomed by the Scioto Ordnance plant.

RIDES WITH RAF TO BOMB BERLIN

U. S. Correspondent Tells of Huge Fires Started By British Planes.

Here and there inside them were yellow fires glimmering in the clear moonlight like clusters of gold nuggets.

Immediately after a big bomb burst numerous small fires became immerged in one great seething cauldron in which the skeletons of buildings were clearly distinguishable The fires were so bright they partially illuminated the bomb-aimer's compartment, silhouetting our bomb-aimer as he poised himself over his instruments

Presently it was our turn to bomb We had been zig-zagging, diving climbing and twisting our way through the enemy's frantic anti-aircraft fire Now we leveled off on a straight course, directly across the target area In the middle of it the big Lancaster leaped up like a surprised animal we had released our two-ton bomb. We tore on across the conflagration below and none of us saw our bomb burst, but the crews in following planes did

Once again we circled for a position in which to run across that target from another direction and drop incendiaries We started this second "run," I heard above the din of our motors three dull thuds directly underneath us Three anti-aircraft shells had come uncomfortably close and some bursting fragments scratched the under parts of our plane but did not do any appreciable damage or harm

Having completed the second run "skipper" said over the intercom (intercommunication system) to the bomb aimer: "Johnny, there's one fire down there that seems to be dying down. Let's start it up again"

Once again we took aim and streaked across the steadily-growing blaze

"Bombs gone" announced Johnny when he had gotten across

"Okay" said "skipper"

Unaccustomed to gauging bomb damage from the air I cannot estimate how big an area was on fire while I was there, but it looked plenty big, and still more fires were to follow because the raid was only at its half-way mark when we left the scene

Looking back, I saw what resembled a blast furnace in the distance Inquiring how far away we were, I was told 40 miles. On we went

"How far?" I asked

"Sixty miles" said Clayton

Homeward bound over Germany and German-occupied territory all hands kept a sharp lookout, for, although there wasn't any anti-aircraft fire there was still the danger that some enemy night fighters might be lying in wait for us None appeared

VETERAN NAVY FIGHTER PILOT AND CHIEF TEST PILOT OF THE NAVY'S NEW CURTISS DIVE-BOMBER

TROUBLE FOR TOJO! It's the new Curtiss "Helldiver," the Navy's latest dive-bomber, designed to carry a bigger bomb-load, at higher speed, for greater distances than any naval dive-bomber in existence. And at the controls in this test dive, photographed below, is Barton T. Hulse, who learned his flying in the Navy...smokes the Navy man's favorite—Camel.

THEY can look terrific on paper. They can meet the most exacting laboratory tests on the ground. But the final proving ground of an airplane is when you fly it.

It's the same with cigarettes. The final test of any brand is in the smoking.

Test pilot "Red" Hulse (right) and countless other smokers could tell you mighty convincing things about Camels and their remarkable mildness and flavor, but your own throat and taste...your own "T-Zone" ...can tell you even more convincingly why Camels are such a favorite on the front line—and on the home front.

Help Legion Find 'Junkers'

DO YOU own a "junker"—or do you know anybody who has one? A "junker", as you probably know, is something that was once an automobile but that has become useless for transportation purposes.

But the metal in those "junkers" is needed for war materials and an intensive effort will be made locally during the next two weeks, under leadership of an American Legion committee, to induce all owners of "junkers" to sell those vehicles for scrap—so as to replenish the supply of the country.

This is called a Victory Jaloppy Round-up, and its purpose is to immediately salvage all old cars and trucks that can no longer be used for transportation.

The "jaloppy hunt," which will extend through to the end of January, will cover the county as well as the city, and an effort will be made to "smoke out" every "junker" that might be helping to win the war instead of standing idle in a garage, barn, backyard or alley.

"Junkers" are paid for at scrap metal prices—and the American Legion committee, of which Howard McClure is chairman, will give complete information to anyone who has a "junker" or who knows where one can be found.

News Men On the Battle Fronts

HOLD a good thought for the news men on the battle fronts. They have a responsible and honorable job that is harder and more dangerous than it has ever been before. A recent report says that of 250 American correspondents now scattered along the world's fighting fronts, already at least ten have been killed and 33 wounded or injured on duty since this war began. There are also many missing, presumably captured or killed.

Such men are engaged in a public service which, but for them, would be greatly missed. They are observers and messengers, who run about the same risks as soldiers and sailors do, being often under fire. But they are unarmed and thus hampered in the matter of self-defense. As one of them expresses it, their chances of still being around after the war are not so good as those of a regular service man, who has a gun on his shoulder and a pocketful of hand grenades, whereas the front-line reporter has only a pocketful of pencils.

Fighters and Workers

THE MAGAZINE Britain reprints from the London Daily Mirror a powerful cartoon. The man going off in the tank with his thumb up is called "The Will to Win." Cheering him off is an eager crowd of workers, also with their thumbs up, called "The Will to Work." The artist calls them "Montgomery's Other Army."

Sometimes American workers look like that—Eisenhower's other army, or MacArthur's, or Stilwell's. But sometimes they look—and sound—not like a united army, but like a heterogeneous group of people who don't care much about winning or working for liberty and for their country, but merely for more and more money and things to buy with it.

Maybe the folks on corners and buses, hearing the talk, are wrong, and such talkers are earnest and sacrificing Americans. But it would be better if they sounded more like it.

Mariners Return To the Sea

THERE have long been prayers for men "who go down to the sea in ships," especially in the Church of England ritual. There might well be such prayers now among all American churches, because of the high mortality among seamen. They may be, if any distinction can be made, among the chief heroes of this war.

An English seaman named John Lowe, 21 years old, found hitch-hiking from Chicago to New York the other day, told this story. He had been on a British supply ship helping in the evacuation of British troops from Dunkirk. The vessel was torpedoed and sunk with heavy loss of men. He swam three miles in machine gun fire until he was picked up by another vessel.

He sailed then on another supply ship, which was torpedoed and went down too quickly for a single lifeboat to be launched. He jumped overboard and kept afloat until he was picked up by a passing freighter.

He was then assigned to a ship bound for New Zealand, and eventually was torpedoed in the Atlantic 360 miles from the Azores. It was at night, and the ship sank in five minutes. He was badly hurt, thrown into the sea with his lifebelt on, and regained consciousness two days later in a lifeboat. There was 56 men in that boat, built for half as many. They drifted 24 days, each man living on five tablespoons of water and one square of chocolate a day. Many died of exposure. A Norwegian ship rescued the survivors and Lowe spent several months in an American hospital.

And where is this youthful Ulysses going now? Right back to England to enlist on another ship. Fate can't keep such men down.

Geographically Speaking

THERE'S nothing to the story that when Boss Flynn was told that he was to be appointed envoy to Australia he asked, "What ward is it in?"

It is quite well authenticated, however, that at one time when Flynn was scheduled to attend a Democratic committee meeting in Columbus, he sent a last-minute wire: "Can't come to Columbus but will make stop in Iowa. Can you meet me there?"

Overheard in restaurant: Customer complains to waitress, "This plate isn't clean." Waitress replies: "Pardon me, but the plate is clean—that spot you notice is the butter."

Add mixed metaphors: "The Japanese people are now hearing the distant rumble of the handwriting on the wall."

That gloomy "end of the world" prediction having failed, another pessimist is forecasting a return of the bustle.

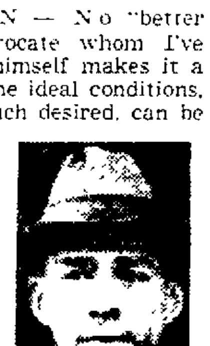
Big Police Job In 'Better World'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — No "better world" advocate whom I've heard express himself makes it a bit clear how the ideal conditions, naturally so much desired, can be arrived at until the "aggressive countries" are so utterly licked that they never again will dare to peep so much as a whisper.



A. A. Berle

In fact, the better-world folk agree that today's international criminals will have to be policed indefinitely; that they never again must be permitted possession of even a firecracker to toss into respectable company.

That'll require a big democratic armament, to keep 'em in subjection.

Now, keeping a country in subjection isn't exactly the same thing as inducting it into a better world. It may be absolutely necessary but it isn't entirely satisfactory from the very standpoint of the peoples who are bossing the job. It's expensive to 'em, and it's precarious also.

Assistant State Secretary A. A. Berle went into this subject the other day at a Boston United Nations meeting, but he didn't answer the problem.

The United States' population, he truthfully said, is a combination from everywhere; therefore we're the ideal aggregation to amalgamate all of everybody. It sounds like logical reasoning, but it doesn't take, somehow.

The German People.

Our assimilated Germans are among our best citizens. They're fighting with us enthusiastically, as witness the one-time German names in the ranks of our scrappers. The stay-at-home crew, though, line up with Herr Hitler. Taking 'em as a nationality, they seem susceptible, on their native sod, to such influence as Herr Hitler's. There are exceptions—fugitives. Still, in the main, they've got to be kept squelched on into eternity. If a guy proves himself susceptible to a criminal's leadership, can he ever again be trusted? It seems to be inherent in his system.

The Italians, both here and at home, seem pretty solidly okay. True the home-guard are fighting with the Axis, but they don't show any great degree of interest in it. Benito doubtless wishes now that he hadn't involved 'em in it; all indications are that he did it as a matter of misjudgment. Neverthe-less, having shown themselves so irresponsible, they require policing.

Spain's pro-Axis-ism centers around Dictator Francisco Franco. He doesn't signify materially. He wanted to imitate Herr Hitler and Adolf helped him to do so, with the result that he got away with it skimpily. He hangs on only by his eyelids. Besides, Spanish America is 99-and-a-fraction the other way.

This simmers it down to Germany and Japan.

How long it'll take home-staying Germany to civilize itself is a question of guesswork.

Assistant State Secretary Berle evidently surmises that it can be done.

A Generation.

It clearly will be a slow process, though. Berle concedes that it'll require a generation.

Meantime this process of policing will have to be in progress.

Is that going to make for a peaceful world?

Yet, what are we going to do about it?

If we fail, says Berle, a worse situation is ahead.

Well, if we win, the question is: Does that end the danger? Or merely stall it off?

His Cross Goes On

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YES, I hate this war. I shudder at the thought of all its waste and agony. But I shudder more at the breed of belittlers who are sliming our fighting trail. And I truly believe that they are harming us more than all our Axis enemies. You know the kind—

They are the people who insist that the whole world has gone to the dogs . . . that civilization has departed forever . . . who can see nothing true or beautiful or valiant in this march of fighting youth. The people who say, "Well, they were drafted anyway, weren't they? They have to go—they can't help themselves."

Well, you have a right to your own thoughts, stranger. But I'm glad that I don't have to share them. I'm no Pollyanna. War is just as ugly to me as it is to you. But it isn't hopeless. I can't believe we're all defiled by its brutality nor do I think that it is a sign of a crumbling world.

TO THE CONTRARY, I BELIEVE THAT THIS IS A HOLY WAR AND THAT THE RACE WAS NEVER LIFTED TO SUCH NOBLE HEIGHTS AS IT IS TODAY WHEN IT IS POURING ALL ITS WEIGHT AND RAGE AND HOPE AGAINST THE POWERS OF DARKNESS.

This isn't "the end of the good old days." This is just the beginning of far better days, days which these marching men are discovering and defending. Nor is this a new war. It's the same old war man has been waging since he first lifted his dim eyes to see the stars. And these boys aren't "just drafted." You can't draft a whole nation if its will and flesh are set against you.

These boys are leaving their hopes and their homes to do a job which they know must be done if we are to live in a cleaner, happier world. And they are going as free men rather than slaves.

Sometimes, looking out into the stormy night sky, I admit my faith falters and I seem to see them all—that tremendous march of youth—going down and out to the seven seas in their planes and ships, then tanks and submarines. And the price we all are paying seems too much to bear. Then, faint and far, but swelling to a mighty current, the old words rise above their armored heads. Remember?

Onward, Christian soldiers,
Marching as to war,
With the cross of Jesus
Going on before!

At the sign of Triumph
Satan's host doth flee,
On, then, Christian soldiers,
On to Victory!

Crowns and throne may perish,
Kingdoms rise and wane,
But the church of Jesus
Constant will remain!

This is a holy war. Remember that when the darkness shuts down on you. Remember that when the memories drag like a chain. Remember that there is a purpose and a plan in all this and always there has been.

THIS CONFLICT IS NOT MERELY WAR—IT IS A GLORIOUS PHASE IN MAN'S LONG EVOLUTION FROM THE CAVE. WHATEVER OUR FAITH OR COLOR OR BIRTHPLACE, WE FIGHT FOR THE SAME PURPOSE.

AND HIS CROSS GOES ON BEFORE!

Dave Boone Says:

THAT earthquake that shook New England may have been just a few more colleges cracking under the all-out war training program. The sight of a college boy in plain clothes just getting a routine education would be enough to do it.

People in all six New England states say they heard dishes rattle, but I guess that's just newspaper talk. There are too many disturbances in everybody's life these days for anybody to pay attention to dishes rattling.

Visitors to New York from all parts of the country are listing the big city's dimout among the amusements offered there. It's just about the best-lighted dimout permitted in any community in America.

Right on the street level it's a little dark in spots, but higher up it's blinding. Tourists with sensitive eyes ought to wear goggles when looking at it. The army and navy is pretty tough on little country towns if they even allow a porch light in a log cabin, but it's just joking apparently in dealing with New York skyscrapers which create so much sky glow that folks in small towns 50 to 75 miles away can almost read by it. In fact, they have to.

Drug Supply Seen as Key to Japs' Hold on Islands, Plenty of Food

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Some notion of the difficulty of the "island by island" attack on Japan is already appreciated by the American people. The fighting at Guadalcanal and around Buna has shown that.

But there seems to be no easy substitute. Positively the difficulty will not be entirely eliminated by the plan of a direct attack on Japan, though this course ultimately may be followed.

Military experts from the Far East now in consultation here believe that the mopping up process will take years, even if the homeland of Japan were completely conquered.

Part of their theory is that the Japanese forces in each of the islands would simply hold on, regardless of what happened in Tokyo. They could not be starved out, it is believed, because there is plenty of food on each of the islands. If any question of there not being enough should develop the natives would go without, not the invaders.

It is pointed out further that if there is no land fighting on any individual island, the Japs would not be expending their ammunition. So much time has elapsed already, it is believed, that the Japs have landed adequate stores of military supplies.

SOME scientists here make an interesting point in this connection, however. It is absolutely essential to the continuance of health of the Jap soldiers that they should have some drug to cope with malaria and other tropical diseases. The best of these is quinine. The best substitute so far known is atabrine. The Japs do not manufacture atabrine, getting their supplies from Germany. Since the war it has to come to Nippon by plane.

The East Indies were one of the best sources of quinine before the war, but word reaching here is that one of the most effective, and permanent, jobs of destruction done by the Dutch in their retreat was the destruction of the cochina plantations.

Hence the scientists here believe that the Japanese armies on the various islands will be absolutely dependent on fresh supplies of this drug, atabrine, brought from Japan overseas. The drug is very concentrated, so that its transport is not ordinarily a serious problem. But fresh supplies MUST be brought in from time to time.

ASSUMING that control of the sea and air around the Dutch East Indies could be established by the United Nations, it would be necessary for blockade running planes to bring in supplies of atabrine. And right there is a rather large "if." The "if" is whether Germany could keep on sending the drug to Japanese-held territory.

At present it is no trouble for the Germans to get the drug to Japan at all, due to its compactness and adaptability to airplane express. But with control of the air and sea in the Far East in Allied hands, there would be the necessity of taking two bites at each cherry. The drug would have to be flown somewhere from Germany, and then flown again to the individual islands.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The war has literally kicked Washington in the face.

From time to time since national defense started, this column has been devoted to changes in the capital's map. It was brought home a good deal more forcibly than scattered reports could picture when I talked to a one-time Washington resident the other day who was making his first visit here since early in 1941.

Washington will never be the same again. Out Maryland way, a white skyscraper rises sheer from a flat area between rolling hills. It's the new Navy Medical Center, where already the boys from Pearl Harbor, Coral Sea, Midway and Solomon Islands battles have been nursed back to health.

Friendship, the one-time rambling estate of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, is now a clutter of apartment houses for government workers. In spite of the magnificent new War Department building just off Virginia avenue and the longated crackerbox Munitions building on Constitution avenue, most of the army is housed in the staggering 45,000-capacity Pentagon building that flanks the famous old military cemetery in Arlington.

THE NAVY building (a twin of the old Munitions building on Constitution avenue) has slopped over into a lot of "Temporaries." Several of these desecrate the once beautiful Reflecting Pool that joins the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial. As a matter of fact the only thing that the Reflecting Pool reflects these days are a couple of ugly enclosed ramps that provide runways for the ants from these gray frame navy hills.

Gravelly Point, a year ago, was just the site of the brand new airport, which was being described as one of the three or four most beautiful and efficient in the world. Now it's a beehive surrounded by buildings which night and day house thousands of army air force workers.

TRANSPORTATION routes across the Potomac have become a curl of cloverleaf ramps and runways. There are busses on the sacred drives in Rock Creek park. One mammoth new hotel is ready for an early opening, but it won't help; many of the old ones have floors of war offices; and the government and British agencies have taken over completely such apartment landmarks as the Corcoran and Dupont Circle. The army and navy have also gobbled up such well-known schools as Arlington Hall and Mount Vernon and National Park seminaries.

What has happened to the White House is pretty much of a military secret, but on the East Wing something new has been added, including the offices of Economic Stabilizer James F. Byrnes. The little guardhouse boxes that dot the famous iron fence of the White House grounds make it look like something out of the Hollywood version of Graustark.

Through piles of scrap, and temporary buildings, you still can see the Washington monument, and the Capitol still looks the same on Capitol Hill—but that's about all that's left of pre-war Washington.

Analysis of Hoover's Views Shows Clarity

—By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

AGAINST the background of his highly specialized World war service and his subsequent tenure of the presidency, Herbert Hoover's expressed view that short of an Indian ocean junction with Japan, Nazidom in Europe is doomed to ultimate internal collapse deserves respectful attention. His experience and training give him authority to speak.

If the only escape for Germany is a sweep to the Indian ocean to join hands with vital war economies with Japan, the Axis' plight in Europe is more dismal than a strictly military summation would indicate. By every sign Hitler has shot his offensive bolt in Russia and in Africa. Those routes to the Indian ocean are more definitely sealed against him today than at any time since the fall of France permitted the first ill-fated Italian invasion of Egypt.

The eastern Mediterranean seems no less closed against an Axis sea or air borne effort via Syria, Iraq and Iran to span the gap southeastward to meet Japan. Turkey is the only other possible avenue. That Turkey would yield unopposed passage under existing war conditions, or that Hitler would dare add another hard-fighting foe to the odds against him is not reasonable.

Moreover, Japan has been completely preoccupied for months now with defensive rather than offensive maneuvering. Therefore the Hoover pronouncement appears to sound Hitler's doom, soon or late.

And it remains to be seen whether the people of Germany are any more ready now to fight it out until the war reaches Germany, otherwise than by air or blockade pressure, than they were in 1918.

An important development that gives the Hoover pronouncement a death sentence quality for the Axis in Europe is the steadily mounting attrition of Japanese sea and air fleets in Pacific engagements.

It is not only Germany and Italy and their Balkan Axis which are balked on every approach to the Indian ocean to clasp hands with Japan. Japan herself is stalled—not only "stopped" in the Pacific, as President Roosevelt puts it, but effectively barred from carrying the war into the Indian ocean beyond the immediate defensive needs of her now exposed Burma flank.

Everyday Poem

Beneficence of Flowers.

How much is added to a room
By flowers, always I
Must have a few in vase or bowl
To greet me passing by.

Or charm me as I sit and sew,
Or read. I love them so
That always I will pause to glance
at them and I will know

From this communion briefly set,
Refreshment and delight
That adds its own beneficence
As it enriches sight.

A man never appreciates ashes until he has slipped on the ice.

Listening In

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SCROOGED behind my newspaper and overheard the women talking.

"Isn't it just ducky how Uncle Sam's perked up and took his own part, since Pearl Harber?" ejaculated a high, very feminine voice.

"Looks to me like we're heading for a communistic government,"—that voice was concise and measured. "Why all our young folks are practically regimented now—there's the WAACS and the WAVES and the army and navy and even government employes getting into uniforms! Can you beat it?"

"And the uniforms look swell if they fit just right," suggested a voice with a laugh in it. "Isn't Uncle Joe Stalin just the handsomest thing? They do say any kind of government will be what the people make it."

"Are you a COMMUNIST?"

"Heavens, no—nor a Socialist, nor a Republican nor a Democrat nor a Fascist nor a Japanese—nor even a teetotaller! I'm good old United States, and what-ever'll do the greatest good, for the greatest number of people, for the longest time, is what I'll pull for . . . call it anything you like!"

"What do you think of the day nursery idea—and this business of community cooking like they have in England?"

"It don't scare me. If a woman works at a war job, her young children can be taken care of, and she can rest her mind about them. It's sensible. And I wish to heck they'd open a community kitchen out our way, and give us the right kind of food to keep us well at a decent price. I know one family that'd throw the cookstove out the window, or onto the scrap pile."

"Wouldn't it be somep'n if they'd start draftin' the women?"

"I'll bet that'll be next. Only Jim'll never consent to lettin' me go away from home to work—that's how' Jim is! He always says a woman's place is—"

"In the home—I know! Well, with two as young as yours, and another on the way, you'd hardly feel too bad about not wearing a uniform just now—or would you?"

"You know there'd oughta be a uniform for MOTHERS! Wouldn't it be sweet if somebody'd design a cute one with insignia to tell how many children she had . . . let's write to Eleanor! She might recommend it."

"She might, at that—only I knew a woman who wrote to her and all the answer she got was an acknowledgment from the secretary to her secretary . . . sorto set her back on her heels!"

"Honest? Well—probly she was lucky. Eleanor mightn't have had time to tell her secretary to HIRE herself a secretary . . . what are we coming to? Why not uniforms for all grandchildren?"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, January 19.

The astral influences are rather doubtful and somewhat adverse on this day, and best results may be assured by attending faithfully and persistently to routine duties Deviating from this rigid course may incur much confusion, difficulties and regrets.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which their own devotion to obligations, duties and responsibilities must be paramount to all other issues, since there are obscure, tricky and chaotic conditions to combat. An under current of the sinister as well as sordid is noted and the mentality or judgment may not only be clouded and confused but irresponsible. Use rigid self-control.

A child born on this day may be steady and industrious, although it may be subject to intrigue confusion and duplicity.

I was proud of Mary. In that second which would have terrified most women, she swept Steve's furious face with amused eyes, then nonchalantly looked at her wrist watch.

"Time's up!" she said cheerily "I can't stop a minute longer. I must prink a bit for my appointment. Awfully nice to have seen you, Steve And you, too, Mr. Winters. "The Authority on Authorities"

TAKE THEM TOGETHER

One of the greatest weaknesses of most fair players, when they are on the defense against an opponent's contract, is in stressing the effort to take tricks in their own hands, rather than in helping their partners to take tricks. When that occurs, the declarer has a terrific advantage. Instead of facing real allies, he is in effect against two different opponents who do not cooperate. More thorough thinking on their part about how they could help each other would make it much tougher for him.

East had a chance to beat that contract, but didn't. West led the heart 4, the 10 forcing the K, and the club 9 was led to the Q and K.

Noting that he had another sure entry in the club J, East decided to try to bring in his own diamond suit He led the K to the A, and South promptly finessed the club 8, letting it lose to the J. Seeing now that the dummy's clubs were set up, and knocking out the heart A would clear the suit for his partner too late, he led his diamond 10 hoping against hope that West still held the J and another diamond, but he did not. Consequently South took that trick with the J, scored three clubs, the heart A and two spades for nine tricks and game.

When East was in with his club K at the third trick, his duty was to lead the heart J. That would have unblocked the suit for West to run later, when East got the lead again with the club J and returned his third heart, the 6. It was at least a 20 to 1 bet that West had the Q at the top of his heart suit, as otherwise he would have had nothing higher than the 9 and consequently would have been virtually sure to lead a short suit in the effort to hit East's length It was also overwhelmingly likely that South had three diamonds to the A-J for his bid The heart return would have set the contract two tricks.

"Pirate" Hats Are Exciting Trend Setters

"Nothing is quite so expressive of drama as an exciting hat," says Miles White, who ought to know. He's the young genius of design, currently receiving the huzzahs of the critics for his brilliant hats and costumes in "The Pirate" newest Lunt-Fontanne vehicle on Broadway

Most of the characters are supposed to be natives of San Domingo and their vivid headwear promises to start a new trend in resort millinery. They wear opulent cotton turbans in dazzling shades like Cobalt blue, lemon and jade, draped around tall crowns of straw. (West Indian glamor girls had a practical use for these toppers, filling them with damp leaves to keep their heads cool)

Lynn Fontanne's chapeaux are perhaps most dramatic of all One is a white leghorn bonnet with a steep crown which opens at the back Loops of blue and white checked organdy with appliqued apple blossoms adorn the back and organdy streamers make a generous bow under the chin.

If this play is any indication of hats to come — and quite probably it is — we can look forward to a millinery season lavish with color and feminine charm.

Reading hearts as a five-card suit and winning the K lead with the A, South then finesses the club 10 to the K and the spade 5 comes back, bringing the 4 from dummy. How should East play to that trick, with South in a contract of 3-No Trumps?

Ginny and Hats Go Well Together

Ginny Simms has been acclaimed the Elsie Janis of World War II (judging by her popularity on broadcasts to our boys). In her stunning new hats, Ginny looks as lovely as she sounds

She particularly likes to link her hat with another item of her ensemble. A pair of silver sea horses chatting on the wide, rolled brim of her black felt fedora adds just the necessary fillip to her beige suit, when matched to a whole school of sea horses swimming diagonally across her black handbag She knows that the boys in service are susceptible to saucy hats with tricky accessories — and her latest get-up is an irresistible argument for television on those broadcasts abroad

Hello Rex: Arrived in the land of milk and honey after a 5-day trip from Ft. Leonard Wood—plenty of fun all the way.

Been here about 3 weeks and haven't had a bit of Podge. Sure miss it. Was with Charles Callahan, jr., at the Fort. He used to get the paper from good old Mansfield. But out here it's different, as we were split up, so guess I'll have to break down and subscribe for it.

Received the Dec. 13th issue last week. Surprised at the number of Richland county boys in the service.

They say this is the best camp in the country. Getting to believe it. And is it beautiful—palm trees and everything—green, just like spring in Ohio. It's located 27 miles from Frisco.

They use one hanger for recreation—3 bucketball courts, 6 bowling alleys, pool, boxing ring, etc. Bowling alleys are new, and swell equipment. A very popular place with bowling at 10 cents per line, three free games if you shoot 220 or better. They limit each man to three games.

Well Rex, give my best to the rest of the boys. Hoping to hear from you soon,

Lots of luck,

Al.

From Possum Run golfer Sgt. Art Van Auker at Camp Shelby, Miss., comes the word that he's been down this long time with pneumonia, but that doctors tell him he is now half-way through the convalescent stage, and he hopes to be home in a month or so.

Art says he hopes to bowl a bowl or two while he's home, but that he probably will have to learn all over again, it's been that long since he tossed a mineralite down the alley.

And if Art's friends care to write to him while he's sick, here's his temporary address:

Here's more from the armed forces:

Mike Linta, first champion pole vaulter in the Linta family, has qualified as expert on the 45-caliber revolver and also on the 30 caliber machine gun at Camp Campbell, Ky., according to official word from the 12th armored division at Camp Campbell.

Private Linta, who is in the 493rd armored field artillery battalion, 12th armored division, has progressed rapidly, says the official report, and at present he is an instructor on the firing range.

Even as he used to instruct Brother John in the pole vaulting pits, no doubt. Mike was district high school champion at Mansfield high, and indoor Big Ten pole vaulting champ as a sophomore at Ohio State.

And Paul Cameron, the old Johnny Appleseed coach, who gave up his civilian job as physical instructor at Napier field, Dothan, Ala., to enlist in the air corps, is right back at his old job of teaching calisthenics at Napier field—but not as a civilian.

It's Second Lieutenant Cecil Paul Cameron now—assistant to the officer in charge of physical training at Napier field. He received his commission on graduation from Officer Candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 9.

Falcons Go After Cage Title

Bee Gees See Plenty of Action This Week.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Unless Someone does something about it this week, Bowling Green's high-flying Falcons may wrap up the Ohio basketball championship although the season doesn't close until March 6.

The brilliant Bee-Gees, already far out front in the statewide race with a dozen victories in a row (their closest competitors have won five) will see action four times this week. If they can run their string to 16 victories without a setback, they should be able to coast the rest of the way to the throne room.

Bowling Green entertains Ohio Northern tonight, and then takes to the road for games against the Toledo Naval station, Youngstown and Kent State, giving Harold Anderson's boys more action than any of the other teams.

If Bowling Green hadn't dropped from the Ohio conference at the start of the campaign, this would have been the crucial week in both the conference and state-wide races. Mount Union, defending champion in both brackets, was originally scheduled to meet the Bee-Gees Friday night at Alliance, but Bob Wright's boys called the game off when the Falcons dropped from the loop. The Mounts are unbeaten in five tilts.

Last week's program saw Capital win its fifth straight to take over the Ohio conference leadership and tie Mount Union for second in the statewide race. The Columbus Lutherans, beaten only once in 15 starts a year ago, appear to have another powerhouse.

Wyndol Gray, Bowling Green's sensational freshman from Akron, scored 54 points in two tilts last week, running his 11-game total to 305—the state's best individual mark.

This week's program calls for 33 games, including two in the Big Ten, 11 in the Ohio conference, and seven with out-of-state foes. Ohio clubs have won 27 and lost 26 to foreign squads this season.

NEW HAVEN LOSES COACH AND TEAM

NEW HAVEN — Just three hours before his team was to take to the ice yesterday for their last hockey game in the American league, Coach Eddie Powers of the New Haven Eagles died of a heart attack on the street.

The Eagles, members of the Eastern division, beat the Providence Reds 9-4 last night and because of poor drawing power, were to sell their franchise today or be automatically dropped.

Sisters Vie For Ice Skating Laurels

Runners-up for the junior women's figure skating championship last year, Barbara, left, and Helen Uhl, sisters, are practicing daily for coming events. The Uhl girls will compete in the Pacific coast championship in February.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—This corner can't speak with authority about such places as Evansville and Muncie, Ind., Swarthmore, Pa., or Wilmington, Del., but from personal observation of the spots chosen by the New York clubs for spring training, we think some notably tall tales will develop from the efforts of players and scribes to find something to do outside of working hours . . . One thing Asbury Park, Lakewood and Bear Mountain have in common is that they're very dead spots in the early spring and just a little too far from New York for quite and easy commuting.

THE SEASHORE

Asbury Park, to our mind, is a place that's always a little too hot or a little too cold, except maybe late at night after a steaming summer day or on a Sunday spring afternoon if you can keep out of the wind . . . At any season, the Shore dinners are something to write home about.

THE PINES

Lakewood, only 17 miles inland from Asbury Park, is a winter resort where they begin to hang up the shutters about spring-cleaning time . . . You can get plenty of sand in your shoes there, too, but what you notice the most in that section are scraggly, misshapen pine trees . . . You have to be careful about your cigar butts there, too; remember those disastrous forest fires during a dry spring a couple of years ago. . . . It isn't surprising that the giants found horse-drawn transportation to their training field on the Rockefeller estate. Carriages always have been popular there, apparently because there's no hurry when there's no place to go.

THE MOUNTAINS

The night before the Dodgers picked Bear Mountain for their training site somebody counted 22 deer feeding on the baseball field. But it's miles to the nearest place where you can put a couple of bucks on a horse race. . . . Currently, the place is something of a winter sports center (when there's snow) featuring ice skating, skiing and the big stone fireplace in the oversize log structure known as The Inn . . . The Dodgers' announcement put considerable stress on the fact that there's a level playing field. In fact, it probably is the only level field in that part of the country except for the plains at West Point.

Bobby Jones Can Still Get Pars

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(INS)—Active duty in the United States army air forces apparently hasn't affected the golf game of Capt. Robert T. Jones—better known as Bobby Jones, the retired former grand slam links king—it was indicated today.

Jones clipped five strokes off regulation figures yesterday while playing the Indian Creek course at Miami Beach for the first time. He was in a foursome and posted a sizzling 67. To make his feat more remarkable, Jones played with strange clubs.

In the foursome with Jones were Brig. Gen. Arnold Krogstad, commanding officer of the Fifth district army air forces technical training command; James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, and Chick Evans, who was "tops" in the golf world a quarter-century ago.

Tuss Commissioned Major In Marines

BOSTON — (AP) — DeOrmand "Tuss" McLaughry, Dartmouth college football coach, has been commissioned a major in the United States marine corps, the third member of his family to join the service.

His son, John, former quarterback at Brown university, is attending a marine officer candidate school, and another son, Robert, is a second lieutenant in the marine air corps.

McLaughry will begin duties immediately as officer in charge of the physical education program at the marine barracks, Parris Island, S. C.

Williams Named Player Of Year

NEW YORK—(INS)—Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox outfielder who for the past two years annexed the American league batting championship, was today selected for another award, by being named by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association for their annual plaque as player of the year.

In addition, the chapter announced, the award for meritorious service to baseball over a long period will be presented, for this year only, in the name of Jack Singer, International News Service war correspondent and former sports writer, who died in the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp.

Sid Mercer, of the New York Journal-American, has been selected for the Jack Singer memorial plaque, and is the second baseball writer in the 14th year history of the award to be so honored.

Presentation of both plaques will take place at the 20th annual association dinner, Feb. 7.

Milwaukee Cop Cops Ice Title

CHICAGO—(INS)—Del Lamb, Milwaukee policeman, member of the 1936 and 1940 United States Olympic teams and holder of the world 400 meter and 440 yard skating records, wore another crown today, the silver skates title.

Lamb won the two-mile event by 30 yards from a fellow Milwaukeean, Jim Holmes, in the 26th annual derbies in Chicago yesterday. Ed Olson, Edgewater Skating club of Cleveland, was third, and Max Kargol of Chicago was fourth.

Wisconsin also carried off the girls' senior silver skates title when Miss Veronica Rossman of West Allis drove ahead of her teammate from West Allis, Miss Bernice Melewski, in the mile event.

The Chicago Catholic Youth organization won the team championship with 360 points.

Fistic Fans Face Famine

Looks Like Long, Hard Winter For Fight Mob.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK—(INS)—It looks like a long hard winter for the fight fans of this village.

As if it weren't enough that most of them went broke backing big favorites like Sgt. Jackie Wilson and Mexican Joe Peralto at the Garden last Friday night they realize today that they have very little to look forward to in the weeks ahead.

Promoter Mike Jacobs planned to use Wilson with Ray Robinson, who looks enough like him to be his twin, in February but squatting and lumbering Jacob Lamotta ruined that idea and Wilson's Garden debut by upsetting the 4-1 favorite.

Before going into the affair Wilson should be advised that a tip-off on the shape of things to come at the Garden is contained in the latest bulletin from Jacobs' office. Mike has matched Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh, with Beau Jack, Augusta, Ga., Feb. 5 and Melio Bettina, Beacon, N. Y., with Gus Lesnevich, New Jersey, Feb. 26.

There is little excuse for either match — except necessity. Mike simply has no other attractions in mind; his lightweight elimination tourney proved nothing more than a promising idea which sputtered, stumbled and collapsed with a peculiar climax Friday evening when Chalky Wright, an over-grown featherweight, licked Peralta, rated one of the hopefuls of the tourney.

If times weren't desperate Zivic would never get a top line shot at the Garden. Ray Robinson knocked him out there a short while back and only a few weeks ago Henry Armstrong whipped Fritzie on the coast. Yet he winds up "on top" at the Garden.

Bettina hasn't boxed since last summer when he met Harry Bobo in Cleveland. Melio is in the army, stationed with the MP patrol in Jersey City while Lesnevich is in the navy, stationed in New York. There will be absolutely nothing at stake in either bout.

Brazil Offered Job At Detroit

DETROIT — Lloyd Brazil, former All-American football star, will be offered the post of athletic director of the University of Detroit today to succeed Charles E. (Gus) Dorais.

The university athletic board met yesterday and after considering the qualifications of three candidates, decided on Brazil. Dorais resigned recently to become coach of the Detroit Lions' professional football club.

Brazil said he had received no official word of the offer. At present, he is the university's graduate manager of athletics, backfield football coach and head basketball coach.

Dorais was both head football coach and athletic director during his 18 years at the university. Whether these duties will continue to be combined is a matter for the new athletic director to decide, according to the Rev. A. H. Poetker, executive dean.

DROP RACE DATES

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Ed Strong, general manager of Thistle Down running-race track, today has announced from his winter home in Florida that because of the critical gasoline and rubber situation no dates have been applied for in the 1943 racing season. He stated that if conditions are favorable, and there are no government regulations on racing, dates may be applied for later in the year.

GAME POSTPONED

CHICAGO—(INS)—William Harridge, American league president, will leave for New York tomorrow to meet with Ford Frick, National league president, to complete work on the new schedules for both circuits, it was announced today.

The conference, which will get under way Wednesday, is necessary to dovetail certain portions of the schedules where cities have a team in each league. The work is expected to be completed in one or two days.

Cardinals Sign Scouting Staff

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Following up the addition of Eddie Goosetree to their scouting staff, the St. Louis Cardinals announced yesterday they also had signed Pat Monahan, veteran of 25 years' of searching for baseball talent.

The Cardinals now have six scouts, indicating that President Sam Breadon believes there will be enough minor league baseball next summer to keep a scouting staff busy.

Goosetree was with the Detroit Tigers for 17 years. Monahan served the St. Louis Browns, Boston Red Sox, New York Giants and Boston Braves after starting with the Little Rock club in 1917.

Handy Andy Knows Answers

Phillip Sparks Whiz Kids of Illinois.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

CHICAGO—(AP)—Handy Andy Phillip is the youngster who knows all the answers asked of the Illinois Whiz Kid basketball team.

Last year as a sophomore guard he helped lead Illinois to the Big Ten basketball championship. This season as a junior forward he is helping lead rival coaches to the hospital.

Playing as if he wasn't handicapped by the lack of the customary "S" at the end of his surname, the 20-year-old product of Granite City, Ill., has plunked in 66 points in a trio of league games. The Illini have lost only to the Camp Grant outfit, 41 to 31, in eight games.

The club has raced through three conference foes without trouble and tonight it opposes Iowa, last league five to beat them but a 61 to 41 victim of the Illini Saturday.

Indiana, however, boasts even a better record with 10 straight triumphs, three of them in the Big Ten. The Hoosiers, who walloped Chicago, 55 to 27, Saturday night, have the Hawkeyes as their foe this Saturday.

Illinois and Indiana do not meet on the league's bobbed war-time schedule.

Other dates tonight keep Purdue at Minnesota and sends Chicago to Ohio State. Only mid-week game bills Romulus, Mich., air base at Michigan. On Saturday, Ohio State goes to Purdue, Indiana to Iowa and Chicago to Western Michigan.

The schedule is light because of exams. Wisconsin doesn't get back in action until its Jan. 26 date with Great Lakes.

Harridge Sees Good Season

Believes Baseball Will Go Ahead as Usual.

By WILL HARRIDGE
(President, the American League)

CHICAGO—(AP)—Looking back over baseball's first war year, the enthusiastic response of fans to the game during the critical season of 1942 leads me to believe confidently that the game will go on and do as good a job in 1943.

The two major leagues now have made their plans for the 1943 season, confident the game can continue not only its recreational contribution, but also aim at matching the sizable financial contribution made by the sport to war relief funds during 1942. And as the season progresses every club undoubtedly will further streamline its plans in line with the times.

At the moment, there are 116 American league players in uniform, with the prospects that many more will join the colors before opening day April 21st. Yet, I am sure every club in the league will place on the field teams which will be a credit to the game and at the same time provide a closer championship race.

During the last year, baseball has faced many difficult problems, but never has there existed any doubt in the minds of those close to the sport that the boys in service want baseball.

The game's ball and bat fund has provided playing equipment for our fighters all over the world and the game hopes to do as well in the field in 1943.

BRAVES TO TRAIN AT CONNECTICUT SCHOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—The Boston Braves will hold their spring training at Choate school, Wallingford, Conn., John Quinn, secretary of the National League baseball club, announced.

Quinn said the team would go into training there about March 22 and stay until about April 10.

In making the announcement after talking with the Rev. George C. St. John, headmaster of the school, Quinn said the team could hold its batting and infield practice in the school's 116 foot square cage.

News In Crawford County Courts

BUCYRUS — Common Pleas court: In the appeal of Calvin Long and Frank McKeehan against Ed Heinle, an application for re-hearings has been allowed by the district court of appeals which finds error in the failure of the local court to remove from the consideration of the jury that portion of the plaintiff's claim for damages aggregating the sum of $1,301.71 which, evidence discloses, were sustained severally and not jointly by plaintiffs. Judgment is reversed at costs of plaintiff and cause remanded for new trial. The higher court finds that the local court did not err in ruling on an answer to a second amended petition.

Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 13: ITEMS EXEMPT FROM TAX

In the instructions accompanying return Form 1040 are listed certain items which are specifically exempt from the income tax and need not be reported as income in the taxpayer's return. Among these is life insurance paid on the death of the insured. Amounts so received are nontaxable to the beneficiary.

However, life insurance paid to a policyholder on the maturity of an endowment contract (not a death payment) represents income, which must be reported, to the extent that the amount received is greater than the premiums or consideration paid for the policy. Amounts received up to the amount of the premiums or consideration paid for the policy are nontaxable.

In the case of annuities received either under annuity or endowment insurance, or under retirement funds or plans toward which the taxpayer has contributed or made payments, a portion of the annuity is considered as representing a return of the funds originally paid in, and is nontaxable, and the balance is taxable as income.

The amount considered as income is an amount each year equal to 3 per cent of the total premiums, consideration, or payments made for the annuity. Amounts received in excess of 3 per cent of the total premiums, consideration, or payments made, are considered as return of principal and are nontaxable; however, when the total tax free amounts received equal the total premiums, consideration or payments made for the annuity, then the entire amount of each annuity payment is considered as income subsequently received and must be so reported.

There are also exempt from tax amounts received by gifts, bequest, and devise, but the income derived from any amounts or property so received is subject to the tax.

Interest on obligations of a state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or possessions of the United States, is exempt from tax and, also, the interest on obligations of the United States issued prior to March 1, 1941, to the extent provided in the acts authorizing their issue. For the manner of reporting such interest the instructions accompanying the return should be consulted. The same applies to interest on obligations issued prior to March 1, 1941, of a corporation organized under an act of congress if such corporation is an instrumentality of the United States.

Amounts received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts for personal injury or sickness, and damages received on account of such injuries or sickness, are tax exempt and need not be reported as income.

Pensions and compensation received by veterans from the United States for services in time of war are exempt, and pensions received from the United States by the family of a veteran for services rendered by the veteran in time of war are also exempt.

Amounts received as a pension, annuity, or similar allowance for personal injuries or sickness resulting from active service in the armed forces of any country are also exempt.

Also exempt and not required to be reported is the rental value of a dwelling house and furnishings provided a minister of the gospel as part of his compensation.

Persons in the military or naval service at the close of the taxable year, below commissioned grade, are exempt from tax on their compensation received for such service, up to $250 in the case of a single person and $300 in the case of a married person.

CHAIN LETTER SELLS BONDS

LARAMIE, Wyo. — (AP) — The chain letter fad has been revived in Laramie to sell war bonds.

A joint committee of Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions club members originated the idea during a drive to sell sufficient bonds to buy a bomber.

The letter urged the receiver to purchase immediately sufficient stamps to fill any books he might have on hand and then turn in the books on war bonds.

NARROW PRICE CHANGES EDGE TOWARD UPSIDE

Scrap Supply Ceases To Be Immediate Steel Worry: Tonnage Flows In.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Narrow price changes, mostly on the upside, dominated today's early stock market transactions.

Improved at a quiet opening were Anaconda, American Smelting, Western Union, Standard Oil (N. J.), Glenn Martin, United Aircraft and International Nickel. Declines were posted for Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber and DuPont.

Boardrooms found some comfort in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said the scrap supply in this industry had ceased to be the immediate worry as of past weeks and, in spite of bad weather conditions and shortage of labor, mills were receiving sufficient tonnage for current operations.

THEATERS

Murder Mystery.

Abbott and Costello continue their merry way in a new comedy, "Who Done It?" showing at the Ohio. The plot deals with murder in a broadcast studio and the efforts of two zanies posing as super-sleuths to apprehend the criminal. Patric Knowles and Louise Allbritton have the romantic leads while the supporting cast includes William Gargan and lanky Mary Wickes who played the nurse in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Evacuation Shown.

Authentic scenes of the evacuation of Paris when thousands of refugees streamed from the city ahead of the advancing Nazi armies, are incorporated in Joan Crawford's starring picture "Reunion In France" showing at the Madison. The scenes were taken by American and French cameramen just after the fall of Paris and flown to England. The picture deals with what happened to a socially prominent French girl at the time of the occupation. The supporting cast is topped by Philip Dorn and John Wayne.

Comedy With Music.

The trials and tribulations of the wives who follow their musician-husbands when a band takes to the road furnish humor and drama in "Orchestra Wives," the Ritz attraction. George Montgomery and Ann Rutherford are in the cast as a trumpet player and his smalltown wife with romantic ideas. Glenn Miller's band is featured in the picture also. Lynn Bari. "Girl Trouble" with Joan Bennett and Don Ameche shares the bill.

Gay Comedy.

Fibber McGee and Molly step out of their class in reel life when they take a fling at high society in "Here We Go Again," the Park attraction. Forced to take an expensive suite in a hotel when they celebrate their wedding anniversary at a swank summer resort the two meet up with Edgar Bergen, a wealthy American scientist who is interested in buying some synthetic gasoline. The cast includes Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd also Ginny Simms and Ray Noble's orchestra.

COAL DEADLOCK HANDED TO FDR

WLB Acts as Miners Stick To Refusal To Resume Work Pending Settlement.

fear his presence there might inflame the situation.

But now he was caught squarely in the middle. His leadership was being questioned by his own rank and file, and a wave of public resentment was welling up against him even though he personally wanted to end the dispute and get the mines working again.

Chief issues of the strike comprised the miners demands for a $2-a-day wage increase and their protest against an increase in union dues from $1 to $1.50 a month. The dues increase was voted by the recent international convention of the union at Cincinnati, and Lewis was powerless under the UMW constitution to rescind the action.

The miners spent a dreary Sunday in the coal fields voting on the question of whether they should return to work. Although UMW secretary-treasurer Thomas Kennedy estimated that only between 10,000 and 11,000 miners actually were idle, it was reported from Pennsylvania that well over 11,000 had voted to remain on strike. Estimates from the field placed the number of men engaged in the walkout at more than 23,000.

Hughes Endorsed As Common Pleas Court's Bailiff

Ralph Hughes, municipal court clerk, today had been endorsed for common pleas court bailiff by the Richland county Republican executive committee.

The bailiff will be appointed by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who will take office Feb. 9 as common pleas judge, succeeding Judge C. H. Huston.

David Lantz has been common pleas court bailiff and county probation officer for the past two years.

Ralph Hardy, G.O.P. executive chairman, said the committee would meet Thursday night at the courthouse to endorse a successor to Hughes in municipal court. Judge H. H. Schettler will appoint the municipal clerk when he takes office Feb. 1.

Ray Hines, former city roof drainage inspector, has been mentioned as a probable successor to Hughes in the municipal court post.

THE BOY FROM MAINE

By Katharine Brush

(Copyright 1943)

CHAPTER V

She had a week-end honeymoon with Phil, and then a week of living as she had before, back in her parents' house, with visits from him sometimes—then he was ordered to Camp Upton, and she went along. She took a war-bride's room in someone's house nearby. It was a farmhouse room, with barnyard sounds under the windows in the early morning, and straw matting on the floor, and bright pink crockery on and around a lurching washstand in a corner, and six trunks of Rosalie's trousseau backed against the purple walls.

As it turned out, she spent almost three months there—in the first discomfort she had ever known, and with the first forebearance. She was very good, and gay, and plucky.

This until March. Then Phil went overseas, and she went home.

She remained quiet, sobered, genuinely shaken for a time. She gave no parties all that spring, and saw few people. She took to working at the Red Cross in the mornings, and to knitting sleeveless sweaters of rough mustard-colored yarn. She dreaded telegrams, and newspapers, and she had nightmares bleak with headlines. I guess I love him, she kept thinking; and of what might happen to him she thought with terror, it would serve me right . . .

But it was better when his letters began coming — sounding safe. Not frightening at all. Not even interesting. Censored, and commonplace—just ordinary love letters, like any others. It was much better then. She felt released, and she could talk again, and wanted to—she had been living in a kind of stricken silence these past weeks, and it was broken now. Now she could tell her mother how he left by train that night, with all the others, and how she couldn't find him in the darkness, in the mass of men, and how there hadn't been a sound except the heavy, steady feet, no voices, nothing, absolutely nothing . . .

There was the day she spoke of Hobey. They were talking about her wedding—they had got back to that, and often talked about it now—and this time Rosalie remembered something quite forgotten. "Oh, by the way!" she said. "I must tell you . . . You know what a mob there was on the sidewalk in front of the church when we all drove up? Well, did you notice the sailor in uniform, in the front row? He was standing right there on the curb—quite close to the awning?"

"Now, my dear!" Mrs. Hastings protested. "At a time like that, how could I possibly—"

"Well, I did," Rosalie said. "I recognized him. Guess who it was?"

"I can't imagine."

"Hobey! My little Hobey Higgins, from the island."

"No," said Mrs. Hastings mildly. "Really?"

"Wasn't that queer? I saw him from the car, just as we were stopping—he was the only one I did see, as a mater of fact," said Rosalie. "The whole car window was one blur of faces gaping in at Dad and me, and all I saw was Hobey's face, and his head with a sailor's hat on it. He was right there—just the other side of the glass. He wasn't a foot away. I was so surprised, I said, 'Why, hello, Hobey—'"

"Oh, but no," said Mrs. Hastings, having put a portion of her mind upon this trivial disclosure. "It couldn't have been he, could it? In Boston! In December?"

"If he was stationed here—"

"But could he be in the service?" Isn't he too young?"

"He's big enough, at least," said Rosalie. "He's all grown up, all of a sudden.

"He really looked quite well in uniform," she added wonderingly.

Two postcard photographs of Hobey as a sailor still exist. He was still only seventeen when he enlisted in the navy. That was on the eighth of December, 1917—two weeks before Rosalie was married—three months after he left home. He could date it either way, in retrospect; and as the years went on, only one slight amendment was required by strictest accuracy—Rosalie's marriage became Rosalie's first marriage, that was all. Not the second one, and not the chief one, but the first one.

A lot had happened to him in the three months since he came from Maine, and all of it had led inevitably to what happened now. Those early weeks in Boston, when he still had some of Mr. Hastings' money left; and then those later weeks, when it was gone. The jobs around the docks, until it got too cold to work outdoors in sneakers and a summer suit. The job as pin boy in a bowling alley. The six days in November without any job at all. The twenty-five cent bed. The meals of coffee. December coming, and the zero wind ripping along the frozen streets, and the snug look of sailors' pea jackets, and the stout black of sailors' shoes, and the recruiting tents so handy, and himself arguing with himself that if he said he was eighteen, they wouldn't know he wasn't, yet. How would they know? He only lacked four months — the shivering months till spring.

He couldn't wait. He had to try them now, however it turned out . . . and it turned out that he need not have hesitated even this long, because they took him as if they were glad to get him. That was that, and all his difficulties ended in another day, and the relief was so tremendous he was fairly giddy with it. He kept taking the wrong elevated trains to Charlestown, where they sent him. He kept waiting in the wrong lines, once he got there. He was as ecstatic a recruit as ever stood and filled his arms up to his chin with all the regulation stuff they issued you, the uniforms in pieces, and the underwear called skivvies; and when he put the outfit on, he was not only proud, like anybody—he was comfortable, for the first time in a long time. He was warm. They fed him, and the whole world changed completely.

Cataclysmic day. He was saluting snappily, before the day was over. He belonged to a probational battalion. He had a hammock in the barracks, and he slept in it that night, and a bugle woke him, and the voice of the boatswain's mate yelled, "Rise an' shine!" He rose, and did the very best he could. He worked prodigiously.

He wrote his family, in the first free time he had. That was days later. He achieved a three-page letter, telling them that he was in the navy now, and that he was at Boston Navy Yard at Charlestown, and that this was the life, and that he'd been here pretty near a week, and that he had arranged to send them an allotment from his pay, five bucks a month, and that they ought to see him in his gob suit, they would laugh.

He added that he guessed maybe they must have wondered where he was since leaving home, and that he would have let them know, but that he'd been too busy. He'd been all right, though, working, only it got pretty cold. How was it there? How were they all? He'd write again sometime when he got time. He signed himself, "H. Higgins, U. S. N. R. F."

"P. S.," he supplemented, "The R. F. stands for reserve, this is for now, but I am hoping to get out of this after 6 weeks and into Class II, which means Regular Navy, would like to get aboard a ship, this is just different kinds of drill all day and signal practice, etc., or else it is cleaning decks or maybe coaling, like today we loaded 120 tons of soft coal in buckets, some job, still it is all right, or O. K. as they say, I like it fine. Yours truly, Hobey."

It was funny, what came of that. It was because he wrote that letter to his family when he did, and sent them his address, that he found out that Rosalie was to be married. He would not have known. He almost never saw a newspaper himself. He had to hear the news from Boston all the way from Maine, and just by luck. That was a very funny thing, the more you thought about it.

They knew it there, because his uncle Wilbur Higgins took a Boston paper—Wilbur ran the island store, and liked to find out what the city prices were so he could charge them—and it seemed that Rosalie's picture had been in the paper last Sunday, and a long piece about how she was getting married on the twenty-first.

It seemed that they had cut this out, to pass around to everybody, and Hobey's eldest sister Sadie had it when his letter came. She answered—for the family—by return mail, and enclosed the clipping. She said he'd likely seen it, being right there, but anyway she'd thought she'd send it on. "Seeing as how you always used to be kind of stuck on Rosalie," said Sadie jocularly; and then she said, "Well, don't feel bad, will you? Ha! Ha!"

It was a large gray picture, like a printed shadow, but distinct. He supposed it was good of her, for just a picture. He kept it, trimming off the caption, and the headlines, and the columns underneath; leaving only Rosalie herself. He did that later, though. Afterwards. At first he kept it all, and folded it to fit the cigaret pocket of his blouse, and wore it there, and took it out, and put it back again, with fumbling fingers. He read it and reread it, until he had memorized the time and place any everything it said—till he believed it, even.

He had to see her, if he could. He had to go, when the hour came. He hadn't planned it, so it was a lot of trouble to arrange. He had to buy another gob's liberty to get off at all—and to do that he had to find the price agreed on, which was two dollars. He borrowed it from a third gob, finally. He had friends already. But the whole transaction held him up, and he was almost late. If Rosalie had not been late herself, he would have missed her.

Afterwards he remembered everything—the square where the church was; the circling lights of early evening; the special traffic in the square, the wedding traffic, limousines in line, police on horseback; the awning from the church door to the curb, that looked when he first saw it like a drooping cigaret the church was smoking; and the clock above, pale in the steeple in the sky, with the hands almost at six-thirty—almost there.

Then he remembered the thick stubborn sidewalk crowd through which he had to wedge his way, from the rear fringe up to the front, up to the curb . . . They had to let him through. He couldn't see from where he was. He plunged relentlessly, using his hands and arms and shoulders; pushing with all his strength. "Hey, what do you think you're doing, buddy? a man's voice whined at him. "Fightin' the Germans?" And a woman's voice cried, "Well, of all the nerve! We were here first . . ."

"Excuse me, ma'am," he muttered automatically. But he stood firm.

So he was there when Rosalie passed, in the last limousine of the procession. He did not even have to wonder what the order of arrival a wedding party might be, or whether he had missed her, because all around him voices said excitedly that she was coming. People who didn't know her name seemed to know that much. She was coming now, in the next car in line, and now his heart that was already rapid from exertion began hammering so hard that he thought maybe it would kill him, acting that way. Maybe it would break apart. Now all the crowd around him and behind him tried to get a little closer, tried to see a little better, and the lurching suddenness of that concerted movement threw him forward, and he caught himself by putting out a hand against the fender of the car, just as it came, just as it filled the space before him.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I understand that at a recent drama opening at a small New York studio the management thoughtfully supplied those patrons suffering from bronchial ailments with boxes of cough drops. This strikes me as a splendid idea and one that might be adopted or even improved upon by the Broadway producers.

Kilgallen

Gotham playgoers especially during the winter months, include some of the greatest coughers in the world. At a recent opening of "The Russian People," for example, an unexpected theatrical effect of sustained artillery fire was created by the rasping cough that passed from patron to patron with a tetchnique similar to that of a symphonic composer who develops a melody by giving it in turn to each instrumental section.

Cough drops may do the job, and certainly they are worth trying, but I have long felt that a more successful method would be to mount snipers in the wings with instructions to pick off the throat-clearers and coughers one by one.

The fact that, in the last week or so, this drastic procedure would have meant my end, too, has no effect on my convictions. It's the principle of the thing.

As one who is forever handing out accolades, encomiums and paeans of lavish praise to performers in the local theaters and niteries, I feel privileged to now and then whisper a few chiding words when needed—and I think a few are needed today. I have been storing up a few mental notes on some of my favorites, and I pass out my slight complaints in the spirit of complete kindness, the same spirit that prompts you to tell a lady "Your slip is showing."

I think I will begin on Romo Vincent, who is a jolly sort and big enough to withstand any number of brickbats. Romo, I was astonished to observe when last I visited the Riobamba, has fallen into the distressing habit of referring to himself as "we" when he introduces his songs. "Now, if we may," says he—or should I say "they"—"we should like to sing for you one of our new numbers, which we wrote only last week, and which we hope you will like as well as we do." Or words to that effect. All the time, I kept looking around for the other fellow.

Now, what I would like Romo to tell me is this: is it the editorial "we" or the royal "we?" Perhaps, once I find out what it is that has suddenly made Romo first person plural, I may get used to the idea.

Then there is Miss Katharine Cornell who, like Romo, has been doing extremely well without any observations from this corner, but here is one anyway. I recently suffered an acute case of the jitters watching Miss Cornell going through an entire performance of "The Three Sisters" with the back of her wrist cemented to her brow. This is a gesture I have seen often in old photographs of Mrs. Fiske, but I was never quite sure whether it meant anguish, love, longing, or merely that she wanted an aspirin.

When Miss Cornell indulges in this old-fashioned trick it is not only dangerous (she runs the constant risk of stabbing a fellow actor in the eye with her outthrust elbow), but it is also unkind. Anyone who looks like Miss Cornell has no call to play peek-a-boo with the audience.

And this just about brings the lesson up to the subject of Miss Carol Bruce. As one of their earliest, most enthusiastic and most consistent admirers I have no hesitancy in reporting that I wish she would not announce her own songs or make any speeches to her audience at the Plaza for any reason at all. She is a fine singer; her diction, whether she chants a ballad or a rhythm song, is perfect, and she looks divine. It is a shame to bring all this glamour down to earth by trying to be her own master of ceremonies.

Of course, this applies to any girl singer. There is really no reason for any of them to go into that "and now for my next number" routine. The French and Viennese chanteuses, of course, go in for it heavily. When you view one of these species, there is no way of escaping the announcement that "I will now sing for you a little French song called 'Tres Tres Tres Tres Tres Gentil" which, as you know, means "I Used to Care for You Once, but That Was in April" and is the story of a little—how you say?—chorus girl who takes a trip to the country and discovers she likes the city better, after all."

As I say, if you attend a performance of one of these, accent girls, you are asking for it, and you get it—right between the eyes. But with Carol, no such palaver is necessary. She doesn't go in for esoterica, and any time she comes out and sings "Stardust" the audience knows it is "Stardust" without any diagrams.

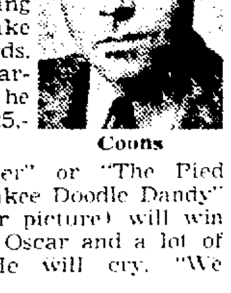
In other words, Carol, just come out and sing.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Now that the prediction season is over, let's get in a few that can't miss:

In 1943 Claudette Colbert, once a big-money star, will clear $25,000 after taxes. . . . Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins, after they finish "Old Acquaintance," will reaffirm their undying friendship for each other . . . . Bing Crosby will make pictures, records, and radio appearances, and he will clear $25,000.



Coons

"Mrs. Miniver" or "The Pied Piper" or "Yankee Doodle Dandy" (or some other picture) will win the academy's Oscar and a lot of unhappy people will cry, "We wuz robbed."

About 835 actresses and 240 actors will announce that they are writing books. One actress and maybe two actors will write books—maybe.

Orson Welles will leave "Jane Eyre" in a huff, followed by his retinue in a station-wagon model huff. But they will all come back because the kinds of huffs Orson leaves in are 20-cylinder huffs, and he hasn't enough gas to get away.

Hollywood's main travels will be along the USO Camp show circuits . . . Ten studios will announce that they will make no more "B" pictures, but somehow low-budget movies will keep on hitting the screen . . . Greta Garbo will clear $25,000 if she makes a picture . . . Certain actresses (whose names you may have later) will marry, divorce, or have babies—or all three . . . Betty Grable will sing, dance, and show off her $1,000,000 legs—and wind up the year with $67,500 before taxes.

Quite a few established stars will make just one movie during the year They'll take the rest in rest.

HITS TREASURY STAND ON NEW TAX PROPOSAL

Vandenberg Says Attitude of Department Delays Action on Pay-as-You-Go Plan.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R) Mich., today asserted that lack of cooperation on the part of the treasury department is slowing up the congressional movement for adoption of the Ruml pay-as-you-go tax plan.

The Michigan senator also said that the treasury is partly responsible for a widespread misconception that adoption of such a program means wiping out of income tax liability on March 15.

Congress, he said, should immediately tackle the problem of legislation to put taxpayers on a current basis, either through the Ruml plan or some similar method.

"It becomes increasingly evident that something of this sort is necessary," he said. "I think it could be done speedily if the problem could be isolated and if the treasury would proceed sympathetically with an attempt to solve the problem.

"I have had a vast correspondence which indicates to me that many people totally misunderstand what is meant by the Ruml plan or anything like it. They are under the impression that March 15 will be a holiday instead of a pay-day.

"And the treasury has unwittingly encouraged this misconception by talking about the money it would lose under the Ruml plan. Of course, the truth is that if a taxpayer's 1943 income is approximately the same as in 1942, he pays the same tax March 15 either way. And the treasury gets the money either way.

"What the taxpayer gains is that his books are balanced at the end of the year. And what the treasury loses is a bookkeeping loss spread over the entire lifetime of the taxpayer, which means that the impact on the treasury, like the impact of mortality on a life insurance company, is spread over generations."

Farmers Map Message to FDR on Time Change.

MADISON, Wis.—(INS)—A message asking President Roosevelt to put back the nation on standard time as an aid to the war effort was drawn up today by the executive board of the Wisconsin Farmers' union.

"The present time system resulted in a loss of a minimum of 18,000,000 manhours of labor last year among American farmers," the message, which will be dispatched to the president today, declared.

The board expressed doubt that fast time has assisted in war plant production.

SET TO ACT ON TAX SUSPENSION

Senate Sponsors Prepare To Speed Elimination of Levy on Meals.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The administration's bill to remove the sales tax from food consumed in public places and drugs will make a quick trip through the Ohio senate—possibly this week—if some sponsors have their way.

A caucus of the Republican senators might even be called to grease the track, an informed source said. The Republicans have a 28 to 5 majority.

One administration lieutenant expressed fear that if the bill was held up long, it would be loaded down with admendments to exempt numerous other articles from the sale tax.

The adminisration is opposed to any reductions or exemptions except for food and prescription medicines.

The time-change issue, however, likely will receive primary attention when the legislature reconvenes tonight.

The senate is expected to concur in a house-approved resolution inviting Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production board, or a representative, to explain to the lawmakers its recommendation that Ohio retain the daylight-saving war time.

Further action on more than 18 bills to turn back the clock an hour may be delayed pending an opinion from the attorney general on the legislature's authority to take such action.

The week's legislative activities also may include action on bills to reduce the speed limit from 50 miles and hour to 35 and to pay the $6,274,000 balance on the school foundation program debt.

Nurses Aide Committee Pushes Drive To Get More Volunteers

To meet the mounting need for volunteer Nurses' Aide service at Mansfield General hospital and to safeguard the health of the community in time of emergency the Nurses' Aide committee of the Red Cross and OCD is making a concerted effort to meet the quota of 150 volunteers for the Mansfield area.

Fewer than half that number have been obtained since the volunteer program was organized last March although a new class of housewives now being formed is expected to increase the number to a total of 86. Until this week the hospital has had only 46 graduate aides from which to draw although starting Monday that number will be increased by 20. A new class which recently finished its examinations will be eligible for service.

The principal need at the hospital according to Miss Mabel Selfe, director of nurses, and Mrs. Tom Ford, assignment clerk for the Nurses' Aide, is for women who are able to report for morning duty.

Most of the 46 volunteers active in the past have been able to give only afternoon and evening service, Mrs. Ford said. This creates a morning shortage of help that the Nurses' Aide committee is trying to meet by organizing a class of housewives which will be available for service either from 7 a. m. to 12 noon or from 8 a. m. to 11 a.m.

Only housewives will be accepted for the class now being formed in order to expedite the process of obtaining morning service. Special hours of training have been designated by the hospital to conform with the time most home women devote to outside or leisure activities.

The class will meet daily for five days a week from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. for the first 35 hours instead of in the evening when all previous training classes have been scheduled. The remainder of the 45-hour training course which gives the Aide experience at the elbow of a professional will be taken at the time best suited to both the volunteer and hospital.

Although the volunteer has an entire year in which to give the required 150 hours' of service either to hospital or first aid station at least 10 Aides completed the requirement in a three to eight months' period. Two exceeded 200 hours and Mrs. Gertrude Bisbee, 550 Townview Circle, tops the list with 307 hours in approximately eight months' time.

Mrs. James Gaff, 138 Poplar street, has served 217 hours and Mrs. Earl Mutch, 201 hours. Mrs. Dale Mowry, 132 South Adams street, is credited with 184 hours.

Others passing the 150 mark by the first of January were Mrs. Henry T. Pollett, 116½ Penn avenue; Mrs. Ethel Laird, 107 Hedges street; Mrs. David Feiser, Russell road; Mrs. Foster Diehl, 41 Douglas avenue; Mrs. Albert Cameron, 145 Rowland avenue, and Mrs. Cecil Bender, Lucas, R. D. 1.

All applicants for the new class will be personally interviewed by the Nurses' Aide committee. Applications should be in the Red Cross executive office at 11½ West Fourth street, by Jan. 23, or as long before that time as possible, according to Mrs. George L. Draffan, chairman of the committee.

UP and DOWN THE STREET

Mansfield is consigning a book typewriter message to Hitler, in bullet form. Service Director Fred B. Wolff today received from the Mansfield Typewriter and Office Supply company a check for $2.50 in payment for an ancient and dilapidated book-model typewriting machine which, in its heyday, was the envy of all City Hall stenographers except the one currently serving as its chauffeur. Couple months ago council members thought $50 would be a fair asking price for the relic but the best bid was $2.50—the junk price—and the machine will be converted into munitions. Incidentally an agent for the buying firm said it really belonged to them anyway, but the trade-in transaction was so long ago no one could recall the details.

The entire company to which Pvt. Arthur DeHart belongs at Ft. Bragg, N. C., shared the news of a recent News-Journal. DeHart proudly reported to his sister, Mrs. John Leddy this week. Since the company was studying the use of bayonets in their course, DeHart thought an article in the Jan. 7 issue, regarding the winning of an overseas battle by the use of bayonets, was of sufficient interest to show his sergeant. The sergeant instructed him to show the story to the lieutenant, who in turn read it to the assembled company much to DeHart's delight.

WAR WORKER MURDERED IN SLEEP, BELIEF

Son-in-Law Finds Body; Police Search For Wife, Last Seen 3 Days Ago.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Sheriff's deputies investigating the slaying of Guy B. Fowler, 47, announced today that he had been killed with a shotgun instead of being bludgeoned to death as at first believed.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Police today searched for the killer of Guy Benoni Fowler, 47, whose body was found last night wrapped in blood-stained towels and bed clothing and stuffed into a cedar chest he had given his wife for Christmas.

Franklin County Coroner Edward E. Smith said Fowler's skull had been bashed in by blows from a heavy object, probably while he slept.

Ironically enough, the slogan, "A lifetime of happiness" was stamped on the lid of the cedar chest.

Fowler's son-in-law, Wayne Morris, found blood stained bed clothing on a back porch when he went to investigate why Fowler, an employe of the Columbus quartermaster depot, had not been seen since last Friday.

Morris summoned police, who discovered the body.

Police and deputy sheriffs meanwhile were searching for the man's missing wife, Norma Bates Fowler, who also has not been seen since Friday. A search of the house revealed that all her clothing and personal belongings were gone, police said. Chief Sheriffs' Deputy Ralph Garner, who was aiding the coroner in the investigation, said he was making inquiries at Circleville, where he understood members of Mrs. Fowler's family lived. The search failed to reveal the lethal weapon, the coroner said.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, both war workers, owned their own cars. Both automobiles were at home, hers parked in the driveway and the husband's in the garage.

Dr. Smith said the Fowlers had been married about five years. They had lived at the Linden home only a month.

Rogers Proposes To Ease Lot Of 'Lifers' In Ohio

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's legislature had before it today a bill seeking to improve the lot of men serving life prison terms for first degree murder.

The bill, introduced by Sen. P. H. Rogers (R-Lorain) would entitle such convicts for parole after serving 15 years during which their behavior had been good.

Other prisoners serving life terms for rape, kidnaping, second degree murder and bank robbery, are eligible for parole hearing after serving 10 years.

Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, who endorsed the idea, emphasized that enactment of the proposal would not mean release of all first degree murderers from prison.

"It would, however," he said, "hold out an incentive for good behavior to such men. Now, with prospect only of a life behind bars, they have no special inducement to behave."

The search for the industrialist continued over a four-state area but no trace of the plane in which he was flying from Washington to Charleston when last heard from has been found.
